BOROUGH ATTORNEY BRINGS SUIT AGAINST TWENTY RESIDENTS.

Action Against Property Owners to Collect for Street Improvements Abutting Their Holdings.

SOME CLAIM DEFECTIVE WORK.

Council Directs That Money Owed Shall Be Secured—Solicitor Goldsmith Collected $2,000—But Was Unable to Get More.

Acting under the direction of the Town Council, Borough Attorney S. R. Goldsmith has filed suit against 20 property owners of Connelville to collect the charges upon which have been made to streets abutting on the land of the properties.

The lines upon which the issues are based aggregate $5,485.83, and the bills held against the property owners range in amounts from $14.30 to $1,000.00. Three of these claims are for amounts amounting to over $500, 12 over $200. These are exclusive of the interest and costs which date from November, 1907.

The papers were filed last evening at Uniontown, upon which a precept will be issued and the Prothonotary within five days will issue another writ from his office and after fifteen days notice from the sheriff they will be made immediately collectable by law, the borough having the power to take the property as satisfaction for the claims.

Great difficulty has been experienced in collecting money due the borough for street improvements. Some refuse to pay the claims on account of alleged defective work, while others have from time to time pushed the matter aside.

Annually the auditors have called the attention of the council to the large and growing amounts due the borough from street paving and other street work, and have advised that it be collected. During Mr. Goldsmith's term of office he has made an effort to collect these bills and has been successful in bringing in amounts ranging up to $2,000, but it seemed that he could not get any more persuasion and the council directed that he bring legal action to settle up the claims.

CARNEGIE WILL NOT APPEAR AT HEARING.

Declines to Be a Witness When Tariff Matter is Brought Up—Refers to Article.

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25.—In a letter to Chairman Payne of the House of Ways and Means Committee Andrew Carnegie declined to appear as a witness at the present tariff hearings. Mr. Carnegie says: "I have served my full time in Washington upon tariff matters and will be excused from further service in that direction. I am no longer in business and in my Century article, companion to that on 'Experience With Tariff Rates and Rebates and Retainers,' have said all I have to say in the subject. Manufacturers will appear before you from whom you can obtain the required details. Regarding comment upon my article in Washington, as published yesterday, I see they have not read the article itself, but only a few striking extracts separated from the context. When you read it you will discover that my faith in protection, wherever it has proved necessary, is as strong as ever and that I continue also to believe that the surest way to secure needed protection is to reduce protective duties from time to time and finally abolish them when they are no longer needed."

WILL MAKE INVESTIGATION.

Health Officer Hyatt to Take Up Disease Among Cattle.

That Samuel Dixon, Commissioner of Health is taking no active measures to stamp out the disease among cattle and in doing so is co-operating with the State Sanitary Board to the extent of having Health Officers investigate conditions among live stock, is certain.

Health Officer Allen Hyatt who has received a circular from the department will begin an investigation as directed at once.

Rushing Bridge Work.

The York Bridge Company is making an extra effort to complete the repairs to the Connelville side of the bridge today and have it in shape to be opened up on this side. The opening up of the stretch will greatly aid to the convenience of the bridge on the Connelville side, and the blockades will be removed to the New Haven side of the river.

PEPE HELD FOR COURT FOR SELLING LIQUOR.

Officers Would Like to Know What Became of Fifty-Two Quarts Disposed Of.

What did Philip Pepe do with the 52 quarts of whiskey he received in a period of 53 days?

That is what Justice of the Peace W. P. Clark and Constable J. W. Mitchell would like to know but when asked about it at his hearing last night Pepe threw the burden of proof on the Commonwealth and refused to explain. Pepe was held under $500 bail for his appearance at December court to answer charges of illegal liquor selling preferred by Constable Mitchell but no evidence against Andrew Dorse and Giovanni Mangani was not sufficient to warrant their being held.

Several witnesses were examined but very little evidence could be adduced. It was shown that on September 22, Pepe received 20 quarts of whiskey by express, 12 quarts on October 15 and 20 quarts on November 20. Pepe said the last consignment was for a christening but did not say what he did with the rest of it.

MEN DISCHARGED FOR ILLEGAL FISHING.

Cases Brought Before McClellandtown Magistrate Not With Same Result As Those Held Here.

Brought before a magistrate at McClellandtown charged with taking fish from the Young river during the recent low water seven young men from New Haven last night were dismissed and Game Warden Maitland was severely criticized.

The first lot of prosecutions were brought before a New Haven magistrate on the same day the fish were taken from the stream, but he dismissed them and the game warden determined to try another magistrate and brought his other cases before Spaulding of McClellandtown.

At the hearing last night the men were represented by Attorney L. P. Brownfield and he succeeded in convincing the justice of the innocence of his clients and at the same time took occasion to say things about the warden.

The matter has caused much discussion in all parts of the county among sportsmen.

MEN FIGHT TO DEATH WITH PISTOL AND KNIFE THIS MORNING.

Martino Rocco Is Dead and Rock Cook Is at Hospital Seriously Wounded.

LAWYER TO WED.

Captain Ernest Kooser of Somerset Will Take Bride.

SOMERSET, Nov. 25.—The engagement of Captain Ernest O. Kooser, a well known legal practitioner of Somerset, and Miss Leonice Price of Brooklyn has been formally announced. The exact date on which the nuptials will take place is not known. Captain Kooser, who earned his title in the Spanish-American war, is Judge Francis J. Kooser's only son. Miss Price is a daughter of E. V. Price, editor of the Electrical Review. Miss Price, accompanied by Miss Zaida Taylor of New Haven, Conn., is visiting at the Kooser residence in Somerset at the present time.

FEUD WAS OF LONG STANDING.

Men Fight to Death in Boarding House Before Companions Who Are Rooted to Spot With Terror—Were Brothers-in-Law.

With one dead and another lying at the point of death with more than half a dozen knife wounds in the Cottage Hospital, a family feud which has been of several years standing was settled this morning. The scene of the tragedy was a boarding house at Roundbottom, about six miles from McKeesport. Martin Rocco, a night watchman, was the man killed and Rock Cook is the man suffering from the wounds received in the early morning duel.

Rocco was a night watchman employed by the P. & L. E. railroad and Cook was a member of the section gang. Together with a number of railroad men they lived at a boarding house. For some time the men have held a grudge against one another. They are brothers-in-law and the feeling has been growing steadily. It came to a focus this morning when Rocco came in. He attacked Cook with a knife and the man in retaliation drew a revolver. With one stabbing the other time after time and the other, emptying the contents of his revolver into his adversary the fight continued for several minutes and was witnessed by several of the boarders who were held spellbound with fright. Almost at the same time the men fell apart, one dead and the other stabbed and backed terribly.

Cook was hurried to the Cottage State Hospital here and the dead man was removed to Parkhill's undertaking establishment at Dawson. Coroner Dr. H. J. Bell was called and will hold an autopsy upon the dead man this evening.

It is claimed that Cook acted in self defense. His condition at the hospital at noon was regarded as serious and his chances for recovery are slight. The combatants were both married, their wives living in Europe.

CRUSADE STARTED AGAINST LOAFERS.

Chief of Police Rotter to Break Up Habit of Standing About Waiting Room.

Chief of Police Rotter, last night began a crusade against the constant blocking of Courtier place by employees of the West Penn building, passengers waiting for their cars and others who loaf about the thoroughfare at the corner of the West Penn building in West Main street. The Chief had a hard time, but acting upon a request from Superintendent of Transportation J. W. Brown he made every effort to put an end to the practice. The crusade will be continued until the thoroughfare is kept clear. Other officers of the local police force will be instructed to use every effort to put an end to the loafing.

In the communication of Superintendent Brown it was stated that the company provides seats in the waiting room for its patrons and there is no necessity of appropriating the entrance to Courtier place as a spot to congregate. Chief Rotter stated today that he will do all he can to prevent a congestion of the thoroughfare and in this he is assured of the co-operation of the West Penn officials.

Arrest Junk Dealer and Recover 1,086 Pounds of Metal.

Further developments in the wholesale robbery of brasses and other materials from the Baltimore & Ohio railroad came yesterday morning with the arrest of Yankel Zeak, a Jewish junk dealer of the Pinnacle district, and three foreigners. The officers recovered 1,086 pounds of metal of every description which, they allege, had been stolen from the yards here and carried to a rendezvous at South Connelville.

The arrests of yesterday were not without dramatic features. Early in the morning Constable L. P. Crossland of South Connelville and Detective Thomas C. Phelan of the Baltimore & Ohio police force, searched themselves in the rear of a coal house at the home of Andy Vichock. It was 7 o'clock when the officers arrived on the scene and after waiting more than an hour their vigilance was rewarded by the arrival of Zeak, who drove up to the place and began dicker with Vichock. Joseph Koschinski and Frank Broski for the metal. The men finally came to an agreement and loaded the junk upon the wagon. Immediately after this was done Crossland and Phelan appeared on the scene and placed Zeak under arrest. The three foreigners made good their escape. The metal was taken down town, weighed, and then deposited on Baltimore & Ohio property at the Hyndman building. Zeak was taken before Justice of the Peace S. S. Korn of South Connelville and held for court under $500 bail.

It required more detective work on the part of the officers to locate the missing foreigners charged with stealing the brasses. From neighbors it was learned that the men had moved away after the arrest of Zeak and other clues were found which indicated their presence in the vicinity of Coalbrook. Crossland and Phelan traced a wagon load of furniture to that place yesterday afternoon succeeding in locating them.

MOB EXECUTES THREE NEGROES

After Farcical Trial Before a Tennessee
Justice.

SOLDIERS ARRIVE TOO LATE.

Tiptonville, Center of Night Riding in Tennessee, Scene of Triple Lynching
Which Governor Patterson Tries in Vain to Prevent.

Union City, Tenn., Nov. 25.—Tiptonville, bordering on Reelfoot lake, which recently has been the scene of many stirring incidents, witnessed the "legalized" lynching of three negroes who were arrested for murdering Deputy Sheriff Richard Burruss and wounding John Hall, a deputy sheriff.

The execution of the negroes was given a semblance of legality by a hurried "trial" arranged with the understanding that the men would be condemned to death as soon as the "trial" was over.

The negroes lynched were Marshall, Edward and James Stinebeck. These brothers created a disturbance at a religious meeting near Tiptonville. When Burruss and Hall attempted to arrest them the negroes shot the officers and escaped. The negroes were captured in a swamp near Ridgely.

The news of the capture spread rapidly, and in addition to the several hundred captives men began arriving by every road. Soon the jail was surrounded by a mob which had no hesitancy in threatening a lynching in broad daylight.

One of the first citizens to mount the steps of the jail and appeal to the mob to desist was J. L. Burdette, a lawyer, who recalled the recent night rider outrages which disgraced the region. He begged his hearers to let the law take its course, promising that full justice would be done the three black men. This met with a long howl of disapproval and Mr. Burdette, seeing that his remarks were of no avail, pleaded with the men to wait till daylight.

Taylor Hall, a brother of the wounded deputy sheriff, said that a postponement of the lynching until night would be satisfactory to him. The mob, however, was restless and it was apparent that delay would not be brooked.

As a last resort S. J. Caldwell and Sheriff Haynes went before Justice Davis and explained the situation. Justice Davis at once agreed to "open court" at 6 o'clock, "summon a jury" and allow the negroes, after "all available evidence" was heard, to be "duly sentenced to death."

Meanwhile Governor Patterson was advised by telephone of the situation and he ordered a company of militia to proceed from Union City with all haste to Tiptonville, seize the three negroes and conduct them to a place of safety. The troops started at once but failed to arrive in time to prevent the lynching.

At the "trial" all of the evidence of those who had seen the killing was heard and in an incredibly short time the "case" was given to the "jury," which in a few minutes "returned a verdict of guilty" and "fixed the penalty at death."

The "sentence" had barely been pronounced on the three negroes when the mob, with a whoop and a yell, swarmed into the courtroom, seized the prisoners, rushed them to a large tree near the edge of town and "duly executed the sentence of death" by hanging them, firing volley after volley into the air as the bodies were drawn up from the earth.

In Social Circles.

Thank Offering Services.

Largely attended was the thank offering services of the Woman's Missionary Circle of the First Baptist Church held yesterday afternoon at the home of the President Mrs. L. V. Marshall on Johnston avenue. The meeting opened with regular devotion exercises followed by a most interesting program on Cuba and Porto Rico. Mrs. Enos Penn was leader of the program.

Mrs. Joseph Dixon read a paper on "Medical Work in the Philippines," followed by a paper on Miss Anne Babbley's Missionary Work, by Miss Jennie Herbert. "Christmas in Cuba" was the subject of an interesting paper read by Miss Smith. Miss Mary Snyder read an instructive paper on "Porto Rico Missions." Mrs. Ira Beal read a paper on Missionary Work. Quite a nice sum was realized from the offering. The next meeting will be held on December 29 at the home of Mrs. Enos Penn on Elgin street.

Mill Run W. C. T. U. Meets.

The regular meeting of the Mill Run W. C. T. U. was held last Thursday at which many ladies were present. The meeting opened with the regular devotion exercises. Following the business session a very entertaining program was carried out.

Mrs. Sue Colborn read Mrs. Allen's report of the National Convention held in Denver. The report was a most interesting one. Miss Agnes Hutchinson gave statistical report of the dark and bright side of our work. Mrs. Alice McCoy read a paper in which she told of the excellent work which is being done by the Flower Mission. Mrs. Hawkins read a paper on "Little Blossoms." Rev. P. S. Wortman spoke on "Child Labor." The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Dull, December 3.

L. L. Club Entertained.

The L. L. Club was charmingly entertained yesterday afternoon by Mrs. H. T. Crossland at her home on Tenth street, New Haven. All members with the exception of one were present and the meeting was a most enjoyable one. The hours were from 2:30 until 5 o'clock. Dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. J. I. Crossland of Brunswick, Me., was a guest of the club. The next meeting will be held on the last Tuesday afternoon of December at the home Mrs. Kell Long on First street.

Alumni Dance and Reception.

A social event of interest is the first annual reception and dance of the Conneltsville High School Alumni to be held this evening in the Armory under the committee of E. T. Norton, Dr. W. N. Goldsmith, T. Clifford Edmunds, Charles Cecil and L. J. Shaw. Music will be furnished by the orchestra. About five hundred invitations are out for the event which promises to be one of the largest and most brilliant social functions held here for some time.

Tyrene Township Wedding.

Homey Newcomer, a young farmer of Lower Tyrene township, and Miss Com Zorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Zorn, of the same neighborhood, were married yesterday afternoon and left for Ohio on a wedding trip. They will visit a brother of the bride, William Zorn, living near Akron, before their return to Fayette county.

Mr. Newcomer is a son of Abraham Newcomer, one of the oldest residents of Lower Tyrene township.

Miss Lenhart Hostess.

Students of the Douglass Business College were delightfully entertained last evening by Miss Pearl Lenhart at her home on Highland avenue. The evening was spent in various games and music until a late hour when refreshments were served. A feature of the evening was several very pleasing recitations by Miss Margaretta Brennan. About twenty-five guests were present.

Ald Society Meets.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the United Brethren Church met last evening in the church with many ladies present. The regular routine business was transacted and reports were given by the various committees on arrangements for the supper held in the Cunningham block last week. It was decided to meet on the afternoon of December 3 at the home of Mrs. Edward Sweeney in Greenwood.

All Ready for Opera.

The stage rehearsal for The Chimes of Normandy last evening was a big success. This entire cast was present, and from the way the principals and chorus acted and sang the music, those attending Thursday afternoon or evening will certainly hear one of the best musical productions that has ever been given in Conneltsville, though it is a home talent affair.

Thank Offering Services.

Tomorrow evening the Foreign Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian Church will observe its annual Thank Offering service in the church on Main street. A special musical and literary program is being prepared for the occasion. A social hour and refreshments will follow.

Box Social a Success.

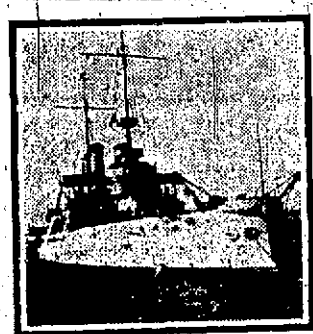

The ladies of the Church of God held a very successful box social last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Merle on Murphy avenue. The attendance was large and the proceeds which amounted to quite a nice little sum will be used for the benefit of the church.

Celebrating Birthday.

ALABAMA AFTER LONG CRUISE.

This is a photograph of the battleship Alabama taken on her last dropped anchor on Thanksgiving, N. Y., after a world-encompassing tour in which she logged off more than 30,000 miles. The Alabama is now in drydock, where several hundred thousand dollars are to be expended in bringing her up to the standard required for service. A day or two more work will be necessary for her to leave the great American fleet, with which she embarked last December.

Circle of the United Brethren Church.

will be held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Edmunds. A large attendance is desired.

Box for Deacon's Home.

Members of the Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church met yesterday afternoon in the church and passed a box for the Deacon's home in Pittsburg.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of First Baptist Church will be held tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Harry Rogers. A large attendance is desired.

Services at Scottdale.

Thanksgiving services will be conducted tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church at Scottdale by Rev. Thomas Lloyd, the pastor.

Dance at Leiderskrantz.

The ladies of the Leiderskrantz Society will hold a dance this evening in the Leiderskrantz hall on Fairview avenue.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

Safe Deposit for Valuables by Mail or Express.

The safe storage of valuable papers, such as deeds, mortgages, bonds, insurance policies, etc., has become such an important matter that a New York Company does not charge business in this line by mail. It is a process with people who have accumulated for safe storage near home. Fortunately there is no need for anybody in Conneltsville to go to the trouble and expense of sending his valuables to New York for safe keeping. The Safe Deposit Vaults of the First National Bank of Conneltsville are among the strongest in the world—absolutely fire and burglar proof and private boxes can be rented at very moderate rates.

YOUTH PEDRO CLUB.

PROCTER AND GAMBLE
NAPHTHA SOAP

If You Were A Chemist,

And analysed a cake of P. & G.
Naphtha Soap, you would KNOW how good it is.

But—you're not a chemist and the only way to find out how good P. & G. Naphtha
Soap is, is to try it.

We want you to do so.

If "P. & G." is as good as we say it is, you will continue to use it.

If it isn't, you won't.

But, be sure to read and follow the directions on the inside of the wrapper. That is important. For this reason:
"P. & G." is not ordinary soap. And it should not be used in the ordinary way.

MEN!

The greatest asset you have is your strength. You can't afford to give out. It is a vital necessity that you have your nervous and muscular system in perfect order to withstand the constant wear and tear of your daily work.

The finest tissue builder and strength creator is Vinol, a Cod Liver preparation that has the greasy, nauseating oil eliminated—only the valuable medicinal properties being combined with peptonate of iron. Its use will keep you in health and strength.

DEBILITY
Results from a weakened condition due to imperfect digestion, lack of nutrition or overwork. Vinol strengthens the digestive organs, creates a healthy appetite and makes new blood. You lose that fatigue, weakness and run down feeling when you take Vinol.

NERVOUSNESS
Is a complaint that can be readily overcome by using Vinol. It repairs broken down nerve tissue and builds strong, healthy nerves that enable you to withstand the worries and annoyances unavoidable in business.

VINOL QUICKLY CURES A COLD AND STOPS A COUGH

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, NOV. 25, 1908

THE REPENTANCE OF EDITOR LILKINS.

The People's Tribune objects to our reference to Local Option as "Prohibition's beloved first-born," and declares that Prohibitionists "never had but little use for Local Option."

They seemed to have enough use of Local Option to withdraw some of their candidates in recent elections and throw their forces to Local Option candidates. The Tribune frankly admits this, however, and goes on to say:

Not until the recent fight did our prohibition people ever consent to be a party to an effort to secure a Local Option law. The Tribune shows how unpopular Local Option is with the voters up North. There are far more people who believe in Prohibition than who believe in Local Option. Many think if liquor is sold in Uniontown, it had as well be sold in Conneltsville, and they can produce some mighty good argument in support of that theory, too.

The thing went up in smoke in this county because the voters do not want Local Option. It will serve as a good warning for some old party people who love their party more than they love the liquor traffic, but as a warning to limit the wrongs of the business it has proven to be very ineffectual. From now on the old party Local Optionists can go his own way, and that way will most likely be looking for whiskey candidates on his party ticket, but as for the Prohibitionists they will keep in the middle of the thing's highway and listen to no word of the compromiser and trimmer.

Editor Lilkins has evidently repented of his wayward wandering from the path of universal Prohibition. He makes public confession and with bitter self-reproaching makes public admission. He would go the straight way and sin no more. He would tolerate Prohibition's apostate robe with the muck and reek of base political alliances never again.

LOCAL OPTION AND LICENSE EXPERIENCES.

The results of the late election in Pennsylvania indicate quite clearly that there has been a decided reaction against Local Option sentiment. On the other hand, Ohio and some other States have secured such a law and many towns have voted against it. Hence, whether the change of popular drift is due to local examples of the failure of Local Option, or whether a sober second thought suggested the wisdom of permitting some of the neighboring States to try out the law thoroughly before adopting it here, is not certain, because it was the voiceless expression of the political undercurrent the direction of whose flow and the causes of whose changes are always puzzling to the best politicians.

While Pennsylvania has no Local Option law, it has some prohibitionist communities within a few hours' journey from the borders of Fayette, in Greene and Washington counties. The county seat of the latter county has been a "dry" town for years, yet the Washington Observer, a champion of the Local Option law, has this to say concerning the "wetness" of its alleged "dryness."

Over in Fayette county and in many counties of the State the clubs which sell intoxicating liquors are raided, their proprietors or officers are arrested and frequently sentenced after being found guilty. No county perhaps in this part of the State has more clubs which sell intoxicating liquors than Washington county. They have become strong not only in our non-licensed towns but in our licensed places. Monongahela has as many perhaps in proportion to its population as Washington.

Right here in this town are clubs which have regular bar-rooms and they run day and night and on Sunday. Yet they are never raided and the law is constantly violated.

Prohibition is resented by many good men because they feel that it is an unwarrantable restriction of their rights both natural and constitutional; besides there is that old spirit of Adam in them which whets their desires for forbidden fruit. The consequence is that they are only more than ever determined to have that which is denied them because their neighbors have no love for it, and they are ready to defy the law at all times and in every manner because they feel that such a law is not binding upon conscience or citizenship.

The Observer depicts the results. They are not attractive. They prove the minds of thinking men that the liquor evil is better controlled under reasonable and lawful regulation than under unlawful, unwarranted and, from every point of view, unprofitable indulgence.

Better the Brooks law which reduces the evils of the liquor traffic to a minimum than Prohibition or Local Option which seldom if ever prohibits.

THE PREMIERSHIP OF THE TAFT CABINET.

While Judge Taft has intimated that he is able to select his Cabinet without advice, there are a number of patriotic citizens who think it a duty to offer him suggestions. They are builders on the job, but they are working without authority and doubtless without pay.

Among the names they have suggested for Secretary of State are those of Secretary Root and Representative Burton, but the evident desire of both to enter the Senate has practically eliminated them from consideration. Other suggestions have been George von Lengerke Meyer, present Postmaster General and former Ambassador to Italy and Russia; Whitelaw Reid, present Ambassador to Great Britain, and Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to the Court of Saint James.

It is admitted that any of these would fill the position of Premier of the new administration with honor to themselves and the nation, but just what President-elect Taft thinks about it is unknown. He is something of a diplomat himself, however, and he can be trusted to select a competent man for the place.

WHY McCLAIN WON'T DO.

Frank D. McClain wants to be re-elected Speaker of the House at Harrisburg, but his conduct at the last session makes it evident that he is not the proper person for the place. The speaker should be fair and courteous to the members. Speaker McClain was neither. He lost his temper in the closing days of the last session, because a bill in which he was personally interested, and which had passed the House, was defeated in the Senate, and out of a spirit of revenge he indignantly refused consideration of all measures in which Senators who voted against his bill were interested.

It is argued, and not without reason, that one who would permit his personal interests to influence his official action in such a flagrant and flagitious manner is not a fit person for the position of Speaker.

Out of the recent controversy between the former State Treasurer and the present, either one first, remains undisturbed, namely, that Treasurer Derry did not have a hand from the Allegheny National Bank until the day of his exit from office. The Allegheny National was known as a political bank, and its policies were always Republican. In his lifetime it was Senator Quay's bank. It is difficult to understand how the immediate and strictly Democratic William H. Derry could so openly ally himself so strategically friendly to a Republican financial institution such as this to make it a principal depository of State monies without requiring a bond until the last moment of his official career. The gentleman from Chester has the floor.

How Monongahela Coal is Shipped.

Once when a member of Congress from this district was asked in the House how many bushels of coal were shipped from the Monongahela Valley in a year, he replied, "They don't ship it by the bushel, but by the car." The reporter from the river districts said that the loaded coal boats and barges lying in the Monongahela and Ohio canals about 100 miles of the black diamonds waiting for water to float them to market.

He Had Moved.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 24.—An enthusiastic Democrat of the town, upon hearing the election returns the morning after the election, remarked to a young farmer who had just moved in from the farm: "The country has all gone to the devil." "Let it go," was the quiet reply, "I've moved to town."

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

In full swing at this store. Sensible gifts the talk of every one this year. A desire on the part of every one to give something useful. We are anxious to help you as much as we can with your shopping. Want to make your shopping a pleasure and that's one reason for asking you to do as much of your buying as you can now and not put it off until the last minute. From now on we ask you to do as much of your shopping as you can during the morning hours. Also some things to mention this week that because of the prices at which they are marked you will stand a very slim chance of finding here after this week.

TABLE LINENS

These should have been for a Thanksgiving sale but for some reason they were not. Twenty place in this lot is Reid's linen and you know the value of that old Scotch name when connected with table linens. These we show are patterns that will not be made the coming spring. Some of them have no napkins to match. But because of these reasons there's a saving to you of from 25 to 50 cents the yard. 72-inch bleached damask, two patterns, have 24-inch napkins to match, regular $1.50 quality, linen $1.25 the yard. Napkins $1.00 the dozen. 72-inch bleached damask, three patterns no napkins to match, regular $2.00 quality, priced at $1.50 the yard. 73-inch bleached damask, same grade that we have sold you for $2.50 the yard, $2.00 the yard. Plain Linen Sets.—Beautiful patterns, some the new round designs. 72X103, 22-inch napkins, $5.00; 60X30 cloths, 22-inch napkins, $10.00; hemstitched sets 60X122, with 19-inch napkins, $10.00; 70X142-inch cloths, with 20-inch napkins, $12.00.

NEWS OF A DAY IN SCOTSDALE.

The Sewer Pipe Case at Greensburg Among Those Continued.

MT. PLEASANT BANK SUITS

Muggy Struck By Car On Broadway
Last Evening—Thanksgiving Day
Services In Town—Oratorio Singers Coming.

SCOTSDALE, Nov. 24.—The case in which the Loucks Hardware Company is suing the borough for the supplying of sewer pipe, whose quality was not approved by the borough engineer and was consequently refused, under an agreement between the company and the borough that the pipe were to be subject to the approval of the borough engineer as to quality, was to come up today at Greensburg. It was continued, however, the same as a large number of other cases since the first week of court was completed yesterday, as several attorneys were interested in the Mt. Pleasant cases in the District Court.

Car Struck Buggy.
Mr. and Mrs. Allan Porter and Arthur Dodson had a narrow escape from death or serious injury when a West Penn car going toward Connellsville shortly after 6 o'clock last evening struck their buggy on Broadway near Loucks lane. They saw the car coming and tried to pull away from the truck when the car was at the Frick office, but the hind wheel slipping on the rail and the presence of a telephone pole at the sidewalk, which pole they had to clear, made a brief delay in getting to one side. The car was coming at a high speed, they say, or it should have been possible for the motorists who saw them on the track to make one of the car length stops which it is said they can do. The car caught the hind wheel of the buggy, houghed, and smashed out several spokes and took the dish out of the wheel.

Has Bought a Dump Wagon.
Street Commissioner T. B. May has bought a dump wagon and now has it in use in hauling. This is the first dump wagon to be owned in Scottdale.

Services at Alverton.
There will be special Thanksgiving services at Alverton this evening at the Methodist Episcopal Church, the sermon to be preached by Rev. W. H. Guyer, the pastor of the Church of God of that place.

Returning to California.
Mrs. Stoner, wife of the late A. L. Stoner, and son, Blaine, who have been here for a few months, leave today for Pasadena, California, where they will reside this winter.

Thanksgiving Day.
The annual Thanksgiving Day services will be held in the First United Brethren church tomorrow forenoon at 10:30. The program of services includes invocation, by Rev. A. D. Martin; Scripture lesson, Rev. H. W. Miller; prayer, Rev. B. D. Madison; reading of the President's proclamation, Rev. B. C. Knicker; sermon, Rev. J. E. Hutchinson. The contribution will be received for charitable purposes, and there will be special music by the choir. In the evening the services will be at the Presbyterian Church, when Rev. W. E. McGulough, pastor of the Homewood United Presbyterian Church, will deliver a lecture on "Abraham Lincoln." A silver offering will be taken at both meetings to be used during the winter among the poor people of town.

The Second Number.
The second number of the Y. M. C.

A lecture course will be at Geyer's Opera House, on Friday evening, when five artists of national reputation appear. They are the Oratorio Artists, who in great musical festivals and concerts have called forth the strongest approval for their singing. They are Miss Florence Hinkle, soprano; Miss Anna Campbell, mezzo; Mr. Henry Ashe, tenor; Mr. Luther H. Harper, baritone; and Mr. Warren Murrie, bass. It is safe to say from the reputation of each of these people that there will be no better musical entertainment in Scottdale than theirs, and that any lover of music who fails to hear this company voluntarily deprives himself of much pleasure.

Box Social Tonight.
There will be a box social at the White school house, west of town, this evening. There has been an interesting program made up by Miss Cooper and Welsh, the teachers. After the boxes will be auctioned off, A. R. Hassler and Thomas Gallentine being on the program as the auctioneers.

Of a Personal Nature.
Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barfield were visiting friends in Connellsville yesterday.

Dr. N. J. Shiley is a business visitor to Pittsburgh today. Justice J. C. Steiner was at the County Capital a few hours yesterday. C. J. Warnock of Blueville, Tenn., is here visiting friends and relatives. James S. Cook has sold a lot in Scottdale to C. E. Harman for $3,000. Borough Engineer J. B. Hoag is here from Connellsville today.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Parker were visitors to Pittsburgh yesterday. Mrs. Margaret Canale has returned home from a visit to her daughter, Mrs. F. R. Ralston, of West Lebanon. St. S. Ellenburger went to Mt. Pleasant today to visit his wife, who is a patient in the Mt. Pleasant hospital. Elmer Kuhns, an engineer of Greensburg, was here visiting friends yesterday.

SHEATZ REFUSES TO DENY REPORT.

That He Has Agreed to Be Candidate for the United States Senatorship.

Harrisburg, Nov. 25.—State Treasurer John O. Sheatz has refused to affirm or deny the report from Butler that he had written to Representative elect McJunkin agreeing to be a candidate for United States senator.

All he would say was that when asked to run that it came "as a great surprise." He declined to make any further statement.

Says Sheatz Has Agreed to Run.
Pittsburg, Nov. 25.—The Gazette Times says today: "Captain Ira McJunkin, one of the representatives elected from Butler county, has announced that a movement is under way to defeat the reelection of United States Senator Boies Penrose and elect State Treasurer John O. Sheatz. McJunkin says that Sheatz has agreed to become the candidate of the anti-Penrose members of the legislature."

"McJunkin gives no figures on the number of legislators enlisted in the anti-Penrose movement. He says there have been several consultations since the election. The last was held at State college a week ago on the occasion of the annual visit of the members. He says at this conference Sheatz was selected as the best man to oppose Penrose. McJunkin personally consulted with Sheatz and says that he secured his consent. McJunkin says there are some factors in state politics allied with the movement now accredited to the Penrose forces."

SHRUBB AND SMALLWOOD AS THEY WILL APPEAR IN THEIR BIG RACE.

One of the interesting athletic events in professional circles Thanksgiving Day will be the distance race at Philadelphia between Alfred Shrubbs, the world's champion runner, and Percy Smallwood, the Welsh champion. Shrubbs, who is an Englishman, is one of the marvels of the athletic world. He holds this remarkable string of records: Mile and a quarter, 5 minutes 40 1/2 seconds; mile and a half, 6 minutes 47 1/2 seconds; two miles, 9 minutes 3 1/2 seconds; three miles, 14 minutes 17 1/2 seconds; four miles, 19 minutes 23 1/2 seconds; five miles, 24 minutes 33 1/2 seconds; six miles, 29 minutes 59 1/2 seconds; seven miles, 35 minutes 4 1/2 seconds; eight miles, 40 minutes 16 seconds; nine miles, 45 minutes 27 1/2 seconds; ten miles, 50 minutes 40 seconds; eleven miles, 56 minutes 22 1/2 seconds; 1 hour, 11 miles 1,237 yards.

GOLD DUST is better than soap and elbow grease for pots and pans. It digs deep into cracks and corners and sterilizes everything it touches

There is nothing about the kitchen which collects so much dirt, grease and grime as pots and pans; and there is nothing that will clean them so quickly, easily and thoroughly as GOLD DUST.

GOLD DUST cleanses until the last evidence of dirt has gone, and removes every trace of germ life.

You are probably not aware that pots and pans which are used constantly contain hidden nests of little wigglers—germs of putrefaction and decay. GOLD DUST removes these, because it sterilizes as well as cleans, and leaves your utensils clean, pure, wholesome, safe.

GOLD DUST will work wonders in cleansing and polishing milk cans, pails, bottles and dairy utensils, pots, pans and kettles.

"What the GOLD DUST does for you!"

WHY SUFFER

when the right medicine will bring relief? Read what Mr. E. C. Eisenbrey of 125 Market St., Philadelphia, writes about CANN'S KIDNEY REMEDY:

"Cann's Kidney Cure Co.
Gentlemen:—It is my heart to give you this word of cheer in reference to your very valuable medicine—Cann's Liver and Kidney Remedy. It does cure. I am in my sixty-seventh year. For nearly all my life I have been troubled with Liver Trouble, and for the past ten years with Bladder trouble, throwing off at times stones of some size with great pain so as to prevent me from walking at times. Some months ago I told you of my trouble, and you advised my stopping the medicine I was taking, and to use your C. K. R., as it would cure me. It has proven to be the best medicine I have ever taken. My friends say I look fine; that yellow, brownish look is gone from my face, complexion clear, sallowness gone from eyes, etc. When they ask what did it I tell them Cann's Kidney Remedy did it. I simply do not know what I would have done without it. I take great pleasure in giving you this testimonial to suffering humanity, and you can take the liberty of sending any one to me to inquire more fully of the great value of C. K. R."

Yours truly,
E. C. EISENBREY.
Another sufferer, Rev. G. G. Rose, of 221 K. Johnson St., Germantown, Pa., writes as follows:

"Through the recommendation of Rev. J. M. Lyons, I was induced to try Cann's Kidney Remedy. For 23 years I had suffered from urinary ailments until they became most unbearable. Soon after using Cann's Kidney Remedy I felt better and by the time I had used a few bottles I was a new man. I sleep well, am not compelled to get up at night, and considering my advanced age, I cannot say enough in praise of your remedy. Hoping that many a sufferer may be induced to try Cann's Kidney Remedy, I am gratefully yours."

"REV. G. G. ROSE."

KEIGHLEY TALKS ON CANALIZED YOUGH.

He Indicates How Useful a Slack-Watered Stream Would Be at Present.

FLOW COULD BE CONTROLLED.

Completion of this Project Would Be First Step Towards a Water-impounding System and Reformation—Demands of the Future.

General Superintendent Fred C. Keighley of the Oliver & Snyder Coke Company, makes some interesting statements in this paper, presented to the board of engineers which is considering the proposition to canalize the Youghiogheny river. After pointing out the historical facts concerning gradual disappearance of surface water from many countries which have today become barren wastes, and the conservation for centuries of water by other countries, to their profit today, including China with her splendid system of canals, Mr. Keighley calls attention to efforts by capitalists in all parts of the world towards reclaiming deserts. He points out the former fertility of such areas and shows why water conservation is of the utmost importance to the Yough region and the industries now flourishing here, as well as those which will come.

Surface water is everywhere seeping down through the upper strata of the earth's surface. Mr. Keighley refers to the fact that even the deepest mines are today losing their moisture, giving off little or no water and that many serious explosions are supposed to have been due to this fact. Surface water must be saved, he states, not only for mines but for general use in the future, and slack-watering is the first step towards a system of impounding water, thereby insuring a certain supply in times of prolonged drought, as at present.

Following the impounding of water in locked streams, will come reforestation as a means for an increasing instead of diminishing the supply of the vital fluid.

Mr. Keighley says in substance: "It has given a number of you to see your efforts dubbed a huge joke by the little journalists of the section contiguous to the Yough. They evidently do not understand Mr. Wallace and his associates. They did not take this up for the sole purpose of slack-watering the Yough from Conneltsville to McKeesport or with the sole view of furnishing transportation. They know that slack-watering will lead to water storage, reforestation and permanent conservation and regulation of supply. Reforestation must begin in the valleys and go upwards. Our efforts should not be ridiculed but should receive aid and encouragement.

"The government in its statistics tells us that water transportation costs one twenty-fifth of the cost by rail, that annual flood losses amount into millions and therefore we ask the government to spend two or three million dollars on the Yough which is an artery for one of the greatest tonnage producing and consuming districts of the United States. George Washington foresaw something of this country's development and backed his judgment by investing more of his money in the times into consideration, in the very lands we are exploiting today, than any other man of his time or since. The Washington Coal & Coke Company property owes its name to the fact that it is located on lands purchased by Washington more than 100 years ago.

"We are asking for the expenditure of a comparatively small sum spread over a number of years and our wishes should be respected out of consideration, for one thing, of the enormous amount of money which this section annually pours into the United States treasury. Improvements of this character could be used as a balance wheel against hard times. We depend too much on Providence; crops fail because it is a failure on the part of men to take note of the workings of nature and to assist her functions."

Mr. Keighley speaks of the great wastes of Australia, due to the sinking of rivers underground. One such underground stream in Australia is supposed to be 200 miles wide. He also speaks of the underground currents of water in the Western States which were formerly barren, but are now fertile producing areas, owing to the bringing back of the water to the surface.

Speaking of the possibilities of the Yough territory, he says that an almost incalculable amount of coal, limestone, cement rock, iron ore, glass sand, building stone, Belgian block materials, fire and brick clays, will require water transportation hereafter from this district, in order to distribute these products at low cost and abundance.

"In conclusion let me refer to the fact that Mr. Hill of the Great Northern Railroad system and Mr. Finley, who controls the railroad systems of the South, both most emphatically say that the waterways of this land must be improved for the growth of our industries will be checked. They further say that railroads can never take care of the country freight and tonnage of the future and that water transportation will not interfere with the business of the railroads, as they will have all they can do to care for higher class freight. If such astute and keen business men do not insist to favor improvements, that to the ordinary man would seem antagonistic to the vast railroad systems under their control, why should there be hesitation in beginning such an improvement as slack-watering the Yough?"

STANDARD KEEPS OIL TEN YEARS.

Has 85,000,000 Barrels Stored Awaiting a Demand—Archbold Continues His Story.

New York, Nov. 25.—John D. Archbold, vice president of the Standard Oil company, today proved a mine of detailed information under the direction of the company's counsel regarding the early production of crude oil and the development of the pipe line system. Mr. Archbold likely will be on the witness stand for several days. He gave his answers in short, brisk manner and seemed possessed of intimate details of the Standard's business from its inception to the present time.

Mr. Archbold said the Standard found and was now finding much competition abroad. This affected the price paid for crude oil. It was the policy of the company, he said, to take care of all the crude oil produced. Crude oil was stored in tanks holding on an average 35,000 barrels. Mr. Archbold said that there was now stored in tanks 85,000,000 barrels of oil waiting for use.

"Why has that been stored?"

"Because the production has been ahead of the demand."

"And in spite of that the Standard has kept on buying?"

"Yes."

"All this enters into the price paid for crude?"

"Yes, that is so."

"How long may this oil be held?"

"Altogether it is improbable that this oil now being taken out of the mid-continent field will be used for ten years."

Closing his testimony John D. Rockefeller threw some unexpected light on the question of into what channels of investment he turns his tremendous earnings in the oil combination. Mr. Rockefeller was loath to state the names of the railroads in which his investments were made, but did so after entering his objection. The head of the so-called oil trust declared that his holdings in railroads consisted chiefly in bonds and that, with the exception of a few roads in which he held only small amounts of stock, he preferred the bonds as a form of investment.

Mr. Rockefeller appeared greatly delighted that his long ordeal as a witness was over and hurriedly left the room when counsel excused him.

Mr. Rockefeller said that he did not think that he should be made to tell the form of his investments, declaring "that the gentlemen over there in the stock exchange might not think it very wise." After some legal contention by counsel Mr. Rockefeller said he held stock in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Western Maryland, the Missouri Pacific, the Texas Pacific and the Colorado Southern. He said he owned no shares in either the Union or the Southern Pacific. Mr. Rockefeller said he opposed the keeping of millions of dollars of surplus by the Standard.

GHOST IS PHOTOGRAPHED

Altona, Nov. 25.—Mrs. David Furry, who, with her husband, resides on a farm near Roaring Spring, is in a state of nervous prostration over a remarkable photograph she had taken a few days ago. All her friends and neighbors are excited over it, too, for they firmly believe that one of the figures in the picture is that of a ghost.

The Furrys entertained a cousin at their farm for a short vacation. He was an amateur photographer. He took Mrs. Furry's picture while she stood outside the front fence at her home. He carried the negative home with him, developed it, made the photograph and sent it to her.

When she opened it she was amazed to find two figures in the picture. One stood out bold, but dimly outlined was the figure of a man—Michael Croft, unmistakable, for his peculiar dress, but whiskers, size, everything, indicated the person.

Oddly enough Croft has been dead for six years. Mrs. Furry firmly believes his ghost was caught by the camera while her picture was being taken. Croft is standing inside the fence and apparently looking at her.

Croft left all his possessions to one son when he died six years ago, and ever since the people of the neighborhood have been reporting mysterious noises on that farm. Nothing will convince them now, since the strange photograph has been exhibited, that there is not something supernatural going on there. Mrs. Furry fears that the figure in the photograph is an omen of her approaching death.

Tries to Eat Hot Poker.

Redbank, N. J., Nov. 25.—After he had surprised friends by saying that he could eat iron, and before anyone could prevent him had placed a red hot poker in his mouth, terribly burning himself, Joseph McCormick of Brantley beach was removed to the Trenton asylum for the insane.

Sharon, Pa., Nov. 25.—Judge E. B. Roberts of Warren, O., died here from a sudden attack of heart disease. He was forty-four years old and unmarried.

NEW STYLE OVENS BIG STEP FORWARD.

Rectangular Type of Construction With "Push" Has Come to Stay.

ITS ADVANTAGES ARE MANY.

Is Expected to Partly Solve the Question of Labor Shortage—Giving Increased and More Regular Output, With Less Waste.

Work is now progressing rapidly on the construction of a large number of the new rectangular ovens, the so-called "push" ovens, throughout the Conneltsville region. Of this type of oven 1,925 are in operation or under construction as follows: Royal works of the W. J. Railway interests, 800, one-half of which are completed, while work is being rushed on the balance; at the new Railway plant on the Monongahela Railroad, near Brownsville, 400; Tower Hill Conneltsville Coke Company, 175 completed at Tower Hill.

At Lann the Taylor-Armour interests have foundations in for 150 of this type of oven. At the Bellegrove plant of the Frick company 300 are almost completed. The Conneltsville Central Coke Company has 100 in operation.

Authorities on coke agree that the "push" oven has come to stay and will gradually take the place of the beehive type and that it will be largely instrumental in solving the labor question at the ovens. Owing to shortage of labor in some parts of the region this oven will be particularly useful in the near future when the coke business once more strikes a normal gait. Where beehive ovens are in use, it is believed that other mechanical devices for drawing the coke will come into much more general use within the coming year, both as a matter of economy and of providing output when labor cannot be secured. It is estimated that the "push" ovens under construction and in operation will average about seven tons, an increase over the old-style fashion of burning coal. In the push ovens, the coke is mechanically ejected at one operation, being literally pushed out from the oven, as the name implies. By this single operation the coke is thrown upon a conveyor, continuous along the string of ovens, which dumps directly into the cars. It is significant that the Frick coke plant, after having experimented with three rectangular ovens, is now building 400 more. Such additional expenditures, required to build and equip this style of oven, result in higher economies in the making of coke, as the size of the plant increases.

Some slight difficulties have been met in using this oven, but they are being eliminated. Extra sprinkling is required in order that the coke may be cooled sufficiently for handling and at present an extra line of hose is used in addition to ordinary sprinkling. As more "push" oven plants are built, the sprinkling facilities will probably be improved to meet requirements, so that auxiliary watering may not be necessary. Quality and tonnage of coke is increased by the oven. Briaze is almost entirely eliminated, and more large, solid coke is produced, which is highly desirable for all modern furnaces. The furnace carries its burden better, and with less liability to accident, when the coke used is uniform and chunky. The old method of drawing coke by hand and forcing it into cars meant a heavy percentage of briaze, which was a loss to operators, most acutely felt in periods of great activity, when furnaces were clamoring for heavy shipment.

Of the 38,000 old-style beehive ovens throughout the region, it may be said that many of these will probably be equipped with other mechanical devices to draw coke, according to well posted coke men. Many of the old-style plants are in excellent condition and will continue to produce coke for years from beehive ovens, which represent too much investment to be thrown out. Nevertheless, the construction of rectangular ovens means a distinct change in the methods of coke production, and will tend towards greater tonnage and more regular operation of plants.

JAMES INAUGURAL CHAIRMAN

Edward J. Stellwagen of Washington Is Chosen of Hitchcock.

Washington, Nov. 25.—With the announcement by Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee of the appointment of Edward J. Stellwagen of this city as chairman of the inaugural committee, the first step was taken in the work of preparing for the inauguration of Mr. Taft and Mr. Sherman as president and vice president on March 4. Mr. Stellwagen accepted the commission and will enter at once upon the duties of his office, which carries no emoluments but involves a great deal of hard work and responsibility.

Mr. Stellwagen has long been prominently identified with some of the largest financial and commercial enterprises of Washington and is a man of splendid executive ability.

HOSPITAL SHIP OVERDUE

Non-Arrival of Relief at Guam Causes Apprehension.

Manila, Nov. 25.—Some concern is felt here regarding the safety of the American hospital ship Relief. This vessel left here Nov. 15 for Guam and was due there the 20th. She has not yet arrived. Orders have been given that the supply ship Supply leave Guam in search of the Relief. Her departure from here was followed by severe storms, in which it is feared she has been caught.

The Relief left Mare Island in February to join the battleship fleet in Australian waters. She made heavy weather off the Hawaiian Islands and Auckland and between Auckland and Sydney she rolled so badly that it was feared she might turn over. It was because of this apparent unseaworthiness that Admiral Sperry ordered her to proceed from Sydney to Manila direct.

NEW SHERIDAN STATUE AT WASHINGTON AND SCENE SHOWING HOW IT WAS MADE

The splendid equestrian statue of General Philip H. Sheridan designed by Gutzon Borglum, the famous New York sculptor, will be unveiled at Washington today. Among those who will deliver addresses, and a large number of officers of the army and navy and statesmen and diplomats. The statue stands in Sheridan Circle, at the corner of the army and navy and statesmen and diplomats. Roosevelt Again Condemns
Distinctions of Race or Creed as Un-American.

NATION IS NOT MERCENARY.

Secretary of War Wright Who Fought for the Confederacy Attends Unveiling of Monument in Honor of Great Cavalry Captain.

Washington, Nov. 25.—In one of the most beautiful parts of the national capital he helped to move, the magnificent equestrian statue of General Philip H. Sheridan was unveiled today. Among the throng of notable persons who gathered to do honor to the memory of the great soldier were the president of the United States, who delivered an address; the army and navy officers resident or stationed in and near Washington; the heads of the executive branches of the government; diplomatic representatives of foreign countries and others of note.

The statue stands in Sheridan circle, named after the general, at the junction of Massachusetts avenue and Twenty-third street. It is the heart of one of the best residence sections of the national capital.

In addition to President Roosevelt's speech an address was delivered by General Horace Porter, who was chief of staff to General Grant and is president of the Grant Monument association. The principal address was delivered by President Roosevelt, who eulogized General Sheridan's army career both in the civil war and in the fighting on the western plains with the Indians. The president's address was as follows:

The President's Address.
It is eminently fitting that the nation's illustrious men, the men who look as heroes before the eyes of our people, should be fittingly commemorated here at the national capital, and I am glad indeed to take part in the unveiling of this statue to General Sheridan. His name will always stand high on the list of American worthies. Not only was he a great general, but he showed his greatness with that touch of originality which we call genius. Indeed, this quality of brilliance has been in one sense a disadvantage to his reputation, for it has tended to overshadow his solid ability. We tend to think of him only as the dashing cavalry leader, whereas he was in reality not only that, but also a great commander. Of course the fact in his career most readily recognized was his mastery in the necessarily modern art of handling masses of modern cavalry so as to give them the fullest possible effect not only in the ordinary operations of cavalry which precede and follow a battle, but in the battle itself. But in addition he showed in the civil war that he was a first class army commander both as a subordinate of Grant and when in independent command. His record in the Valley campaign is a classic from the Fort to Appomattox is one difficult to parallel in military history. After the close of the great war, he is a field where

There was no glory to be won by the general in chief, he rendered a signal service which has gone almost unnoticed, for in the tedious, weary Indian wars on the great plains it was he who developed in thoroughgoing fashion the system of campaigning in winter which, at the cost of bitter hardship and peril, finally broke down the band of those formidable warriors, the horse Indians.

General's Career Eulogized.

His career was typically American, for from plain beginnings he rose to the highest military position in our land. We honor his memory itself, and moreover, as in the case of the other great commanders of his day, his career symbolizes the careers of all those men who in the years of the nation's direst need sprang to the front to risk everything, including life itself, and to spend the days of their strongest young manhood in valorous conflict for an ideal. Often we Americans are tempted with having only a material ideal. The empty folly of the pursuit is sufficiently shown by the presence here today of you men of the Grand Army, you the comrades of the dead general, the men who were with him and under him. In all history we have no greater instance of a lofty ideal over merely material well being among the people of a great nation, than was shown by our own people in the civil war.

And you, the men who were a blue, would be the first to say that this same lofty indifference to the things of the body, when compared to the things of the soul, was shown by your brothers who were the gay. General was the suffering, dreaded with and under him. In all history we have no greater instance of a lofty ideal over merely material well being among the people of a great nation, than was shown by our own people in the civil war.

Americanism Defined.
There is another point in General Sheridan's career which is good for all of us to remember. Whereas Grant, Sherman and Thomas were of the old native American stock, the parents of Sheridan, like the parents of Farragut, were born on the other side of the water. Any one of the five was just as much a type of the real American, of what is best in America, as the other four. We should keep steadily before our minds the fact that Americanism is a question of principle, of purpose, of idealism, of character; that it is not a matter of birthplace or creed or line of descent. Here in this country the representatives of many old world races are being fused together into a new type, a type the main features of which are already determined and were determined at the time of the Revolutionary war, for the crucible in which all the new types are melted into one was shaped from 1776 to 1780, and our nationality was definitely fixed in all its essentials by the men of Washington's day. The strains will not continue to exist separately in this country as in the old world. They will be combined in one, and of this new type those men will best represent what is loftiest in the nation's past, what is best in her hope for the future, who stand each solely on his worth as a man, who do not refuse to submit to wrongdoings themselves, who have in them no faint of weakness, who never rest to fight when fighting is demanded by a sound and high morality, but who hope by their lives to bring ever nearer the day when justice and peace shall prevail within our own borders and in our relations with all foreign powers.

Much of the usefulness of any career must lie in the impress that it makes upon and the lessons that it teaches to the generations that come after. We of this generation have our own problems to solve, and the condition of our solving them is that we shall all work together as American citizens without regard to differences of section or creed or birthplace, copying not the divisions which so lamentably saddened our fathers one from another, but the spirit of burning devotion to duty which drove them forward, each to do his right as it was given him to see the right, in the great years when Grant, Sherman, Thomas, Sheridan, Lee and Jackson and the Johnston, the valiant men of the north and the valiant men of the south, fought to make the great civil war, they did not know the meaning of the bitterness of the struggle, the blood and the grim suffering marked the death throes of what was worn out and the birth pangs of a new and more glorious national life. Mighty in the heritage which we have received from the men of the mighty days. We in our turn must give up our lives to meet the new issues with the same stern courage and resolute adherence to an ideal which marked our fathers who belonged to the generation of the men in whose honor we commemorate this monument today.

STRIKE LOSSES MADE UP

Witness Says Related Railroads Reimbursed Anthracite Companies.
Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—At the hearing in the suit by the government to dissolve the alleged anthracite trust, A. F. Law, secretary of the Temple Iron company, was the principal witness.

Under cross-examination by James McKenrold, special government attorney, it was developed that during the last two winters in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company, Lehigh Valley Railroad company, Erie and the New York, Susquehanna and Western railroad contributed $480,000 to the Temple Iron company to make up a three years' deficit and that the company never reimbursed the carriers. It was also brought out that the Temple Iron company, through earning working, maintained its 4 per cent dividends through this assistance.

"By Jove, Blake," muttered Winthrop, "I must say, you're not very encouraging."
"Didn't say I was trying to be."
"But, Mr. Blake, I am sure papa will offer a large reward when the steamer is reported as lost. There will be ships searching for us."
"I've not in the British channel, and I'll bet what few boats do come along there don't nose about much among these coral reefs."
"I fancy it would do no harm to erect a signal," said Winthrop.
"Only thing that would make a show in Miss Leslie's skirt," replied Blake.
"There is the big leopard skin," persisted Winthrop. "To his surprise the engineer took the suggestion under serious consideration."
"Well, I don't know," he said. "If we had a water background, now, but against the rocks and trees—no; what we want is white. I'll tell you—when Miss Jenny sets to and makes herself a dress of that skin, I'll try her skirt to the hysters."
"Mr. Blake! I really think that is cruel of you!"
"Oh, come now; that's not fair! I wouldn't have said a word, but you said you wanted to help."
"I beg your pardon, Mr. Blake. I did not quite understand you. I really do want to help—to do my share."
"Now you're talking! You see, it's not only a question of the signal, but of clothes. We've got to figure any way on needing new ones before long. Look at my pants and vest, and Win's coat. Inside a month we'll be in a hide-out in hiding. That's a joke. Win, me by sea!"
"But in the meantime—" began Miss Leslie.
"In the meantime we're like to miss a chance or two of being picked up, just because we've failed to stick out a signal that'd catch the eye twice as far off as any other color than scarlet. Do you suppose I worked my way up from axman to engineer, and did not learn anything about flags?"
"But it is all really too absurd! I do not know the first-thing about sailing, and I have neither thread nor needles!"
"It's up to you, though, if you want to help. My sisters sewed mighty soon after they learned to talk. 'Bout time you learned, then, now! I did not mean to hurt your feelings. You've made a fair stagger at cooking, and I bet you win out on the dressmaking. For needles you can use one of these long, slim thorns—poke a hole, and then slip the thread through, like a shoemaker."

"Ah, yes; but the thread?" put in Winthrop.
"The coconut fiber would hardly do," said Miss Leslie, forgetting to dry her eyes.
"No. We could get fairly good fibers out of the palm leaves; but that will be a whole lot better. I'll slip up a lot for you, fine enough to sew with. And now, let's get down to work. No offense—but did either of you ever learn to do anything useful in the past every time I tried to do it. After this I'll go down the cliff at that end of the gully."

Winthrop, who had become very irritable and depressed during the last two days, turned on his heel, with the look of a fretful child.
To cover this undiplomatic rudeness, Miss Leslie spoke somewhat hurriedly. "But why should you return again to the river, Mr. Blake? I'm sure you are risking the fever; and there must be savage beasts in the jungle."

"That's my business," growled Blake. He paused a moment, and added, rather less ungraciously: "Well, if you care, it's this way: I'm going to keep on looking for ore. Give me a little iron ore, and we'll be able to have a lot of steel knives and arrow-heads that'll amount to something. How're we going to buy anything worth while with bamboo tips on our arrows? Those poor tusks are a fizzle."

"So you will continue to risk your life for us? I think that is very brave and generous, Mr. Blake!"
"Flow's that?" demanded Blake, not a little puzzled. He was fully conscious of the risk; but this was the first intimation he had received or conceived that his motives were other than selfish. "Um! So that's the ticket. Getting generous, eh?"
"Not getting—you are generous! When I think of all you have done for us, and that it's not been for you, I am sure we should have died that first day ashore."

"Well, don't blame me. I couldn't have let a dog die that way; and then, a fellow needs a hand Friday for this sort of thing. As for you, I haven't always had the luck to be favored with ladies' company."

"Thank you, Mr. Blake. I quite appreciate the compliment. But now, I must put on my cap."
Blake followed her graceful movements with an intentness which, in turn, drew Winthrop's attention to himself. The Englishman smiled in a disagreeable manner, and resumed his work on the bows, with the look of one mentally preoccupied. After supper he found occasion to spend some little time among the bamboos.

When at sunset Miss Leslie withdrew into the bamboo, Winthrop somewhat officiously insisted upon helping her set up her screen in the entrance. As he did so, he took the opportunity to hand her a bamboo knife, and to draw her attention to several double-pointed bamboo stakes which he had hidden under the litter.

"What is it?" she asked, troubled by his furtive glance back at Blake.
"By almost unobserved, Blake was to go to the that not only himself, but his companions had work to occupy every hour of day."

light. When not engaged in cooking and fuel gathering, Miss Leslie was learning by painful experience the rudiments of dressmaking.
At the start she had all but ruined the beautiful skin of the mother leopard before Blake chance to see her and look over the task of cutting it into shape for a skirt. But when it came to making a waist of the cub fur, he said that she would have to make out the pattern from her other one. But every cooking three meals a day over an open fire, gathering several armfuls of wood, and making a dress with pecklife, thorn, and cutgut, the girl had little time to think of other matters than her work.
Winthrop had been galled at being hunter in ordinary. His task was to keep Miss Leslie supplied with fresh eggs and each day to kill as many of the boobies and cormorants as he could skin and split for drying. Blake had changed his mind about making him when he went for coconuts. Instead, he had gone alone on several trips, bringing three or four loads of nuts, then a little salt from the seashore, dirty but very welcome, and last of all a great lump of clay, wrapped in palm fronds.

With this clay he at once began experiments in the art of pottery. Having mixed and beaten a small quantity, he molded it into little cups and bowls, and tried burning them over, night in the watch-fire. A few came out without crack or flaw. Vastly elated by this success, he fashioned larger vessels from his clay, and within the week could brag of two pots suitable for cooking stews, and four large nondescript pieces which he called plates. What was more, all had a fairly good sand glaze, for he had been quick to observe a glaze on the bottoms of the first pots, and had reached out that it was due to the sand which had adhered while they stood drying in the sun.

His next turned his attention to metallurgy. The first move was to search the river bank for the brown bog iron ore which he believed he had seen from the farther side. After a dangerous and exhausting day's work in the mire and jungle, he came back with nothing more to show for his pains than an armful of creepers. Late in the afternoon, he had located the hematite, only to find it lying in a streak so thin that he could not hope to collect enough for practical purposes.

"Lucky we've got something to fall back on," he added, after telling of his failure. "Pass over those keys of yours, Win! Good! Now unclasp those creepers. To-night we'll take turns knocking them up into some sort of a rope-ladder. I'm getting mighty weary of hobnobbing around the point every time I try to get to the river. After this I'll go down the cliff at that end of the gully."

Winthrop, who had become very irritable and depressed during the last two days, turned on his heel, with the look of a fretful child.
To cover this undiplomatic rudeness, Miss Leslie spoke somewhat hurriedly. "But why should you return again to the river, Mr. Blake? I'm sure you are risking the fever; and there must be savage beasts in the jungle."

"So you will continue to risk your life for us? I think that is very brave and generous, Mr. Blake!"
"Flow's that?" demanded Blake, not a little puzzled. He was fully conscious of the risk; but this was the first intimation he had received or conceived that his motives were other than selfish. "Um! So that's the ticket. Getting generous, eh?"

"Thank you, Mr. Blake. I quite appreciate the compliment. But now, I must put on my cap."
Blake followed her graceful movements with an intentness which, in turn, drew Winthrop's attention to himself. The Englishman smiled in a disagreeable manner, and resumed his work on the bows, with the look of one mentally preoccupied. After supper he found occasion to spend some little time among the bamboos.

"Merely precaution, you know," he whispered. "The ground in there is quite soft. It will be no trouble, I fancy, to put up the stakes, with their points inclined toward the entrance."
"But why?"
"Not so loud, Miss Genevieve! It struck me that if any one should seek to enter in the night, he would find these stakes decidedly unpleasant. Be careful how you handle them. As you see, the sharper points, which are to be set uppermost, run off into a razor edge. Put them up now, before it grows too dark. You know how nine-plus are set—that shape. Good-night. You see, with these to guard the entrance, you need not be afraid to go to sleep at once."

"Thank you," she whispered, and began to thrust the stakes into the ground as he had directed.
It had not been mistaken. The vague doubts and fears which she already entertained would have kept her awake throughout the night, but thanks to the sense of security afforded by the sword-bayonets of her silent little sentries, the girl was soon able to calm herself, and was fast asleep long before Blake awakened Winthrop.

Immediately after breakfast, Blake who had spent his watch in grinding the edges from a stone and experimenting with nails and bent twigs—put Winthrop's keys in the fire, and began an attempt to shape them into a knife-blade. To heat the steel to the required temperature, he used a bamboo blowpipe, with his lungs for bellows.

Winthrop turned away with an indifferent bearing; but Miss Leslie found herself compelled to stop and admire his dexterous use of his rude tools.
One after another, the keys were welded together, and to end, in a narrow ribbon of steel. The thinnest one, however, was not fastened to the tip until it had been used to burn a groove in the edge of a rib selected from among the bones which Miss Leslie had thrown out of the haubab. The last key was then fastened to the others; the blade ground sharp, tempered, and inserted in the groove. Finally, pieces of the keying were fitted in bands around the bone, through notches cut in the ends of the steel blade. The result was a bone-handled, bone-backed knife, with a narrow cutting edge of fine steel.

Long before it was finished, Miss Leslie had been forced away by the requirements of her own work. In fact, Blake did not complete his task until late in the afternoon. At the end, he spent more than an hour grinding the handle into shape. When he came to show the completed knife to Miss Leslie, he was fairly aglow with justifiable pride.

"How's that for an Eskimo job?" he demanded. "Bunch of keys and a bone, eh?"
"You are certainly very ingenious, Mr. Blake!"
"Nix! There's little of the inventor in my top piece—only some hustle and a good memory. I was up in Alaska, you know. Saw a sight of Eskimo work."

"Still, it is very skillfully done."
"That may be. Look out for the edge! It'd do to shave. No more bamboo splinters for me—dull, when you hit a piece of bone. I'm ready now to skin a rhinoceros."
"If you can catch one!"
"Guess we could find enough of them around here, all right. But we'll start in on some of Win's sheep and cattle."

"Oh, do! One grows tired of eggs, and all these seabirds are so tough and fishy, no matter how I cook them."
"Well, much down to the wood, and make a try with the bows this evening. I'll give odds, though, that we draw a blank. Win's got the aim, but no drive; I've got the drive, but no aim. Even if I hit an antelope, I don't think a bamboo-pointed arrow would bother him much."

"Don't the savages kill game without iron weapons?"
"Sure; but a lot have flint points, and a lot of others use poison. I know that the Apaches and some of those other southern Indians used to fix their arrows with rattlesnake poison."

"How horrible!"
"Well, that depends on how you look at it. I guess they thought guano more horrible when they tackled the whites and got the daylight let through 'em. At any rate, they swapped arrows for knives mighty quick, and anyone who knows Apaches will tell you it wasn't because they thought bullets would do less damage."

"Yet the thought of poison—" "Yes; but the thought of self-preservation! Sooner than starve, I'd poison every animal in Africa—and so would you."

"I—I— You put it in such a horrible way. One must consider other animals as well as people; and yet—" "Survival of the fittest. I've read some things. For instance, I'm the boss here, because I'm the fittest of our crowd in this environment; but back in what's called civilized parts, where the law lets a few shrewd fellows monopolize the means of production, a man like your father—" "Mr. Blake, it is not my fault if papa's position in the business world—" "Nor his, either—it's the cursed system! No; that's all right, Miss Jenny. I was only illustrating. Now, I take it, both you and Win would like to get rid of a boss like me, if you could get rid of Africa at the same time. As it is, though, I guess you'd rather have me for boss, and live, than be left all by your lonesomes, to starve."

"I—I— There is no question of your leadership, Mr. Blake. We have both tried, our best to do what you have asked of us."
"You have, at least. But I know, if a ship should come to-morrow, I'd be Blake to the back seat. Papa, give this—person a check for his salary, while I chase off with Winnie, to get my look-in on 'is Rial 'Iznessa.'"
Miss Leslie flushed crimson. "I'm sure, Mr. Blake—" "Oh, don't let that worry you, Miss Jenny. I don't me. I couldn't be sore with you if I tried. Just the same, I know what I'll be like. I've rubbed elbows enough with snobs and big bugs to know what kind of consideration they give one of the malheuses—unless one of the malheuses has the drop on them. Hello, Win! What's kept you so late?"
"None of your business!" snapped Winthrop.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF.
From Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat and Hoarseness, by Using Hyomei. When you catch cold you want to get rid of it as quickly as you can. You don't want to lie around the house for a week swallowing nauseating drugs. You know when you do this that you are not only making your own life miserable, but are a nuisance to everyone about you.

Why not avoid all this; why not relieve your cold in five minutes; why not cure it over night? You can do it by using Hyomei, the sure and guaranteed cure for Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma.

Hyomei is medicated and antiseptic air; you breathe it into the lungs through a small pocket inhaler, and its soothing influences as it passes over the inflamed membrane of the respiratory tract, stops the mucous discharge, allays the inflammation, and the cold is cured. A complete Hyomei outfit costs $1.00 and A. A. Clark will refund your money if it fails to cure.

Husband and Wife Cured. I had a bad form of catarrh. My left nostril was closed entirely. There was also a constant dripping of blood from the right. I only used Hyomei a little over two weeks, and am now cured. My husband was also cured of catarrh and lung trouble two years ago by Hyomei—Mrs. Harry Ohney, Alliance, Ohio.

A GOOD REASON.

Connellsville People Can Tell You Why It Is So.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure the cause of disease, and that is why the cures are always lasting. This remedy strengthens and tones up the kidneys, helping them to drive out of the body the liquid poisons that cause backache, headache and distressing kidney and urinary complaints. Connellsville people testify to permanent cures.

Mrs. Lawrence Francis, 411 Tenth street, Connellsville, Pa., says: "Both Mr. Francis and myself have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results. I was cured of kidney complaint by his remedy and have not had a sign of the trouble since. Mr. Francis also uses this preparation whenever he has backache or any symptoms of kidney trouble and it never fails to give him prompt relief. We value Doan's Kidney Pills very highly."

Cut Off Woman's Head.

Pittsburg, Kan., Nov. 25.—Elizabeth Strader, a carpenter, age twenty, cut off the head of Mrs. Strader, his next-door neighbor at German. She was a housekeeper for his cousin. As a result of a feud a volley of words was fired over the backyard fence, whereupon Mrs. Butts hurled a brick at Strader's wife, cutting a deep gash in her face. Strader then cut off Mrs. Butts's head with his razor. He surrendered.

STEEL SCHEDULE TAKEN UP TODAY.

Manufacturers Are Well Represented at Tariff Hearing.

INDEPENDENTS OUT IN FORCE.

House Ways and Means Committee, Holding Hearings Preparatory to Revision of the Tariff, Take Up Steel Schedule at Today's Session.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Preparatory to the hearings on the question of iron and steel revision which began today before the house ways and means committee an informal conference was held of those representatives of steel and iron companies who are here to appear before the committee.

"No plans have been made to advocate either a reduction or an increase of the tariff as it pertains to steel products," said E. C. Felton of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the Pennsylvania Steel company. "We have come

SHERMAN E. PAYNE.
Chairman Ways and Means Committee here to lay before the committee the various facts of which we are in possession regarding the particular variety of steel products with which we deal. We will leave it to the committee after having all the facts in its possession to decide whether the tariff needs to be revised. Our purpose is not to advise the committee on that point."

Mr. Felton refused to discuss Andrew Carnegie's article in the Century, stating that he would not say anything until he had read the article as a whole, as he might have an entirely different view of the matter after having seen all of Mr. Carnegie's argument in favor of tariff removal on steel. Mr. Felton will address the committee on the subject of steel rails.

Numerous Independents Present.
Present also at the conference were Willis L. King of Pittsburgh, vice president of the Jones & Laughlin company, who will speak before the committee on steel shapes, plates and bars; James G. Butler of Youngstown, O., of the Brin Mill Furnace company, who will speak on pig metal, scrap and ferro alloys; John A. Toppling, chairman of the Republic Iron and Steel company, Pittsburgh, who will speak on billets, blooms, slabs and sheet bars; James A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, who will speak on pipe and tubular products; W. H. Rowe, president of the Pittsburgh Steel company, who will speak on hoops and cotton ties, and James Lord, president of the American Iron and Steel Manufacturing company, of Lebanon, Pa., who will speak on iron bars.

Others who will appear but who have not yet arrived and the topics on which they will speak are: F. S. Witherbee of Witherbee, Shorman &

Co., New York, who will speak for the eastern ore producers; William G. Mather of Pickands, Mather & Co., who will speak for the iron ore producers; Edward Bailey, president of the Central Iron and Steel company, Harrisburg, Pa., steel plates; Isaac M. Scott, president of the LaBelle Iron works, Steubenville, O., steel sheets; Charles Roebbing, president of the John A. Roebbing Sons company, Trenton, N. J., wire and wire products; William C. Park, chairman of the Crucible Steel company, crucible steel, and William L. Ward of Russell, Burdall & Ward company, Port Chester, N. Y., bolts and nuts.

BORANDO AND HAYES IN RACE TONIGHT.

Will Repeat Great Marathon Run of Stadium in London in New York.

New York, Nov. 25.—Followers of track athletics will have their inning here tonight, when they will see Dorando, the Italian runner who so nearly won the Marathon race in London, run against Johnny Hayes, the American winner of the race. Hayes and Dorando—whose right name, by the way, is Dorando Pietri—will meet in Madison Square Garden and will run the Marathon distance, 26 miles and 385 yards.

The Italian runner is confident that he will take the measure of the foot-footed American this time. He is handicapped by the fact that all of his running heretofore has been done on the road, while Hayes is familiar with circular tracks such as that in the Garden, which measures ten laps to a mile. Hayes's supporters say they cannot see the Italian at any stage of the game. "Johnny will outrun him and will last much better than the Italian," said the American champion's manager.

Harry Pollok, who is looking after Dorando's interests in this country, declares that he will do better here than he did in London. In confirmation of his remarks he pointed to Dorando's excellent record since the London race.

TEAMS READY FOR GAME.

Thanksgiving Contest Between School Clubs Will Be Lively One.
Connellsville High in its readiness for its second clash with the school boys of Mt. Pleasant at Marietta-Sullivan park tomorrow afternoon and a close game is anticipated. The local team has been well through a course of practice preliminary to the contest and will go into the game in first class condition. The men are free from injuries and are in the best physical condition.

Mr. Pleasant will present a much stronger team than it did earlier in the season, but the locals expect to come out victorious.

Basketball Team Wants Game.

The Young Americans of Uniontown are anxious to secure a game with some Connellsville basketball team. Manager Fell of Uniontown is looking the contests.

"The Boy With the Boogie" is a play to please the masses. Full of comedy sensation, and music. "The Mirage" scene and the Brooklyn bridge at night are splendid examples of the scenic art. It will be produced at the Solson Theatre, matinee and night, Thanksgiving Day. Seats on sale at the theatre.

EPIDEMIC CHECKED

Dr. Pearson Says Aphthous Fever Was Caught in Time.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 25.—"The foot and mouth disease among cattle is not sweeping over the state; the outbreak was caught too early for that," said Dr. Leonard Pearson, state veterinarian.

Dr. Pearson said the disease has been found in thirteen counties of the state and that all cases have been traceable to Buffalo. So far 324 head of cattle and 340 swine have been killed in the crusade against the disease.

Michigan Under Quarantine.
Detroit, Mich., Nov. 25.—After a conference of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and Chief Melvin of the bureau of animal industry with state officials a quarantine has been ordered against Michigan cattle similar to the one enforced in Pennsylvania and New York. One hundred cases of foot and mouth disease have been found in this vicinity.

Four Cargoes of Cattle Condemned.
London, Nov. 25.—The board of agriculture has ordered the slaughter without delay of the cattle on board the four steamers that have arrived in England since the board issued its order prohibiting the importation of cattle from New York and Pennsylvania on account of the foot and mouth disease in these states. The animals that came in by these vessels were found to be free of the disease but no chances are being taken.

Street Fighting at Nanking, China.
Nanking, Nov. 25.—The situation at Nanking where a mutiny on the part of the Chinese troops broke out Nov. 19 is serious. There has been fighting in the streets of the city and a portion of the foreign residents here have taken refuge on board a British gunboat.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

Scene from "A Knight for a Day."

The Boy With the Boogie.

The most original in theme, realistic in effects, abounding in sensationalism, with clean and moral story of love, devotion, etc., are the truthful claims of Howard Hall's new play musical comedy-drama, "The Boy With the Boogie," which comes to the Solson Theatre, matinee and night, November 25. Every scene is a marvel of realism. Every climax is wrought with the most intense excitement, while as a scenic investiture, it is complete. The third act, introducing "The Mirage on the Desert," presents a scene that holds the audience's interest and attention and it can be truthfully stated "once seen," "never forgotten." The management has spared no expense or time in making "The Boy With the Boogie" the representative of its class.

A Knight for a Day.

The attraction at the Solson Theatre, matinee and night, November 25, will be "A Knight for a Day." Miss May Vokes and John Slavia head a cast of about 70 engaged in the presentations. Produced initially in Chicago about two years ago, the production won a run that consummated 607 performances uninterruptedly at the Whitney Theatre. Brought direct to New York early last autumn, the production caught on instantly at Wallick's Theatre, where it attracted away crowds readily up to the end of the theatre's regular season in May. Transported to Boston with the close of the New York run, the galaxy remained the attraction at the Tremont Theatre all through the summer. Scenically and spectacularly, too, the production is uniformly conceded to diffuse rare charm. Contrary to the suggestion possibly imparted by its title, "A Knight for a Day," has nothing to do with interests mediaeval. The knight of the story isn't a knight, but a waiter posing as a nobleman. Serving a modern knight one day and falling to be tipped, the waiter tips himself to the knight's credentials and goes a treasure trove for 24 hours. But it is in unexpected adventures and misadventures that the laughs of the comedy are evoked. Many incidents of the piece have become bywords. Two of these, one an eloquent down a ladder from the seminary dormitory of the false knight and his chore lady sweetheart, and the other a well scene involving the intoxication of the "servant lady" by a champagne-charged cister, have brought international repute to their principals. B. C. Whitney has used careful judgment in selecting a very capable and excellent cast. The staging of the piece is the work of August Schlock and the ensemble numbers are described to be very beautiful. The music is by Raymond Hubbard. A special feature of the production are the electrical effects, which without doubt are the most beautiful spectacles ever produced on the stage. The continuing is away above the ordinary.

MISERY FROM AN UPSET STOMACH AND INDIGESTION WILL BE ENDED.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in the mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure the worst case of Dyspepsia and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from Stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve a sour stomach or Indigestion in five minutes. Get a case now and eat one Triangle after your next meal. They are harmless and taste like candy, though each contains powder sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a hearty, healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your Stomach and Intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach prescription, too, if you ever have Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery, and eat just one Triangle of Diapepsin.

WIDOW, IN QUARANTINE, THUS VIEWS

Husband's Body.

York, Pa., Nov. 25.—A pathetic scene in connection with the funeral of Maurice N. Belding of Red Lion, who was accidentally electrocuted by touching a heavily charged switch, was the viewing of the body by the father, widow and young son of the deceased, who were under a scarlet fever quarantine.

They had not been permitted to attend the funeral, but when the wife became almost frantic the undertaker suggested that the casket be carried to the rear of the house. There, while the father, widow and son gazed tearfully through a window, the coffin lid was removed for a moment. Many of those who witnessed the sad spectacle turned away sobbing.

Want Compulsory Inspection.
Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 25.—The legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of Pennsylvania met here to discuss probable bills and urged upon Governor Stuart and the state railroad commission the recommendation of a bill for the inspection of track, equipment, signals and boilers by all railroad companies. Most companies do this work now, but the railroad men want it made compulsory. The state officials heard the arguments and promised consideration.

The members present were: Luther Labarre, Tamaqua; C. E. Reese, Scranton; T. Sheridan, Wilkesbarre, and W. H. Drake, Wilkesbarre.
